

Academic WorldQuest 2010

Fact Sheet

Purpose: The Indiana Council on World Affairs' Academic WorldQuest 2010 is a global knowledge competition for high school students. Each year, schools from across Indiana compete to participate in the National WorldQuest Competition sponsored by the World Affairs Council of America in Washington, DC. The Indiana Council on World Affairs was proud to have Warren Central High School represent Indiana at last year's WorldQuest national competition.

The competition is unique. There is no other national competition that covers the same subject areas. A flagship program of the World Affairs Councils of America (WACA), Academic WorldQuest is a team game testing competitors' knowledge of international affairs, geography, history, culture, flags, sports, current events, prominent newsmakers, economics, international organizations, and more.

Academic WorldQuest 2010

Corporate Sponsorship

The Indiana Council on World Affairs needs YOU to be an Academic WorldQuest 2010 Sponsor. Your participation will give high school students the opportunity to represent their community and the State of Indiana as well as to visit Washington DC, see historical sites and meet prominent political figures.

Students who participate in the Academic WorldQuest 2010 will be introduced to the importance of understanding international cultures and affairs and will develop a much more global view of critical issues facing not only the world but their local communities. The competition emphasizes the importance of understanding and appreciating cultural diversity and international affairs that directly effect on their lives while ensuring a fun and positive learning experience that gives students a sense of ownership in the development and preparations of their teams.
